AN AI EXPLAINS
BEAUTY

Oliver Bendel, ChatGPT and DALL-E 3

1st edition 1 November 2023, Zurich

Preface

Dear Reader,

In this project, I first created images using DALL-E 3. For consistency, I structured the prompts similarly in each case, making sure to keep them as general as possible. They covered a range of subjects: things, plants, animals, people, movements, behaviors, and so on – and all of them contained the adjective "beautiful". From the suggestions provided by DALL-E 3, I chose one and combined it with the prompt from ChatGPT (which serves as the interface to DALL-E 3) to create the basis of this book.

I then engaged ChatGPT (using the image upload feature) to explain the beauty of the things, plants, animals, and humans. At first, the AI was reluctant to offer insights about people, but with some encouragement, it obliged. The results of these inquiries are also documented here. They are the real sensation. ChatGPT can recognize and describe individual objects in an image, and it can do so regarding predetermined perspectives and aspects.

Despite the diversity guidelines of DALL-E 3, hardly any PoC images were created autonomously. I addressed this bias with a direct request. It was also difficult to escape the usual stereotypes. With the short-haired girl, DALL-E 3 succeeded in this after all. When asked about the beauty of an object, ChatGPT never responded with "nothing about it is beautiful". It does not know the concept of ugliness, nor does the image generator (with respect to humans). This is demonstrated in my little book "On Beauty".

Most of the explanations are interesting and accurate. However, ChatGPT ultimately fails to capture the essence of human beauty. The whole project was done on November 1, 2023, including the publication. I hope you enjoy reading and watching!
